Honor 8 vs Honor 8X: A Detailed Comparison of Two Popular Smartphones

Choosing the right smartphone can feel overwhelming, with countless models boasting similar features. This article aims to provide a comprehensive comparison between two popular Honor devices: the Honor 8 and the Honor 8X. While both were released within a few years of each other, they cater to slightly different needs and budgets. We'll dissect their key specifications, performance, design, and camera capabilities to help you decide which phone best fits your requirements.

Design and Build Quality

The Honor 8, released earlier, boasts a sleek, premium glass design. Its dual-camera setup sits elegantly on the rear, encased in a polished metal frame. This gives it a sophisticated, albeit slightly fragile, feel. Its compact size made it comfortable for one-handed use, a feature often missing in larger modern phones. The Honor 8X, on the other hand, adopts a more modern, all-screen design with a noticeable notch at the top. Its larger display is encased in a plastic frame, making it more durable and resistant to scratches and drops than the Honor 8's glass build. While the plastic might feel less premium, it offers superior practicality for daily use. Think of it like this: the Honor 8 is dressed for a formal event, while the Honor 8X is ready for everyday adventures.

Display

The Honor 8 features a smaller 5.2-inch Full HD (1080 x 1920 pixels) display with vibrant colours and good sharpness. It's a perfectly adequate screen for most users, providing a comfortable viewing experience for media consumption and everyday tasks. The Honor 8X, however, sports a significantly larger 6.5-inch Full HD+ (1080 x 2340 pixels) IPS LCD display. The larger screen real estate provides a more immersive experience for gaming, watching videos, and multitasking. The higher resolution also contributes to sharper visuals and a more detailed image. For instance, reading e-books or browsing web pages is noticeably more comfortable on the 8X's larger display.

Performance and Battery Life

The Honor 8 utilizes a Kirin 950 processor, which offers smooth performance for everyday tasks and light gaming. However, demanding applications might push it to its limits. Its 3000mAh battery provides decent battery life for a day of moderate usage. The Honor 8X boasts a more powerful Kirin 710 processor, delivering significantly improved performance over its predecessor. This allows for smoother multitasking and better handling of graphically intensive games. Its larger 3750mAh battery offers considerably longer battery life, easily lasting a full day even with heavy usage. For example, a user who streams music and plays mobile games extensively will find the 8X's battery life far superior.

Camera

Both phones feature dual-rear camera setups, but their capabilities differ. The Honor 8 has a 12MP + 8MP configuration, capable of taking decent photos in good lighting conditions. Low-light performance, however, is a weakness. The Honor 8X offers a 20MP + 2MP dual-camera setup, providing significantly improved image quality, especially in low-light conditions. The larger sensor size allows for better light gathering, resulting in clearer and brighter night shots. The inclusion of AI scene detection further enhances image quality, automatically adjusting settings for optimal results. In practical terms, the 8X consistently produces better images in various lighting scenarios.

Conclusion

The choice between the Honor 8 and Honor 8X depends heavily on your priorities. The Honor 8 offers a premium glass design and compact form factor, ideal for users prioritizing aesthetics and one-handed usability. However, its performance and battery life are less impressive than the Honor 8X. The Honor 8X, on the other hand, offers a larger display, significantly improved performance, longer battery life, and a better camera system, making it a more versatile and future-proof device. For most users, the Honor 8X presents a superior overall experience.

FAQs

1. Which phone has better performance for gaming? The Honor 8X boasts a more powerful processor, making it significantly better for gaming. 2. Which phone has a better camera? The Honor 8X has a superior camera system, particularly in low-light conditions, thanks to its larger sensor and AI scene detection. 3. Which phone has a longer battery life? The Honor 8X has a significantly larger battery capacity and lasts considerably longer on a single charge. 4. Which phone is more durable? The Honor 8X, with its plastic body, is more durable and resistant to scratches and drops compared to the Honor 8's glass back. 5. Which phone is better for one-handed use? The Honor 8, with its smaller and more compact design, is better suited for one-handed operation.
